HYPNOTIZED A FAMILY THAT DOESN'T WAKE UP

La Salle, Ill., April 26.—Rudolph Bartag, his wife and five children were found lying in a comatose condition at their home in Ticona, a village near here, today by a committee of citizens. Investigation was spurred by a mysterious quietude which had surrounded the Bartag home for four days. Evidence of life in the home was found in a well-kept fire in the stove. All efforts to arouse the family were futile.

Lee Lenzler, a youth suspected of having knowledge of the affair, confessed, when sharply questioned, to being a hypnotist, and admitted having put the family to sleep with the consent of the victims four days ago and of having been unable to revive them. He claimed he has visited the home daily since the happening and remained there all last night attempting to restore the sleepers to consciousness. He said he kept the house heated to avoid further inquiry as to the condition of the family.

After repeated efforts today he managed to arouse two of the children. Brooding over his predicament has placed him on the verge of prostration. He promises to arouse to a state of sensibility other members of the family when he shall have regained his nerve. The doctors who have examined the victims say their condition as to hearts and pulses is all right. At the urgent request of Lenzler residents of the village will not permit any physician to interfere in the matter. Many people residing in that region viewed the sleepers today.

PLUCKY ENGINEER SAVED HIS TRAIN

Chicago, April 26.—Engineer Strand of the Santa Fe saved fifty persons from wreck, mutilation and possible death Friday night by a display of courage that won unstinted praise. Strand pulled the fast Chicago express of the Santa Fe from Fort Madison to Chicago. Friday forenoon Strand forced his engine up to a speed of a mile a minute in an endeavor to make time against the terrific gale then blowing over Illinois. Despite his best efforts when he reached Joliet he was nearly an hour behind time. After leaving Joliet he ran into a high gale with snow and sleet, but did not slacken his speed.

He came up Desplaines valley through Lamont at a whirlwind gait and suddenly out of the darkness and on the main line, a few hundred feet ahead of him, he saw the end of a coal car. Strand struck his engine, threw on the air, reversed his machine, and then went into the car with a crash. After hitting the car the big engine went under it and shoved it ahead 500 feet and then came to a dead stop. While the car was completely wrecked Strand's engine came off with only a smashed front. The roadbed was well torn up for quite a distance. If the engineer had not applied his air and stayed by his engine, the wreck, railroad men say, would have been most disastrous.

Aim at Control of Cuban Tobacco Output

New York, April 25.—The World will tomorrow say: An important move in the battle for control of the tobacco market of the world will be made today when the giant Continental Tobacco Company and the American Cigar Company will, through a new arrangement, become practically one. Control of the tobacco output of Cuba is aimed at. The new combination of the Continental Tobacco Company and the American Cigar Company is one by which the Continental buys the entire manufactured output of the American Cigar Company and disposes of it through its own salesmen.

PRACTICAL JOKER KILLED

Chicago, April 24.—A practical joke terminated fatally for Edward L. Miller, a colored man, who was shot and killed by Joseph B. Brown, another colored man, who was a friend of his victim. Both men had lived in the same house, 103 South Peoria street, for several months. Brown was approaching his home, when Miller started out of the shadows with a gruff command of “throw up your hands!” Brown fired four shots at the supposed hold-up, who fell to the street. Brown was arrested. Miller had no weapon and his hands were in his pockets.

A SUICIDE IN IWILEI

JAPANESE WOMAN TIRES
OF A SHAMEFUL LIFE

Uses Revolver and Carbolic Acid to Accomplish Her End—Husband Forced Wife to Become Prostitute.

While crowds of soldiers surged up and down the streets of Iwilei last night and sounds of fighting and revelry could be heard from one end of the place to the other, there was silence and fear in a little room above the street by the rice mill. Here a small crowd of Japanese men and women were gathered around the body of Ito Kiko, a Japanese woman who, during the afternoon, had ended her life of misery and shame by sending a bullet into her breast.

While the suicide was probably committed in the afternoon, the police did not hear of it until about two hours later, when a Japanese doctor telephoned to Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth that he had been called to Iwilei to attend to a suicide.

The deputy immediately hastened to the place where he arrived a little after 8:30 p. m. In the room where the dead had been committed he found the dead woman's body. Her husband and his friends had removed her from the floor where she was found and laid her on the bed. The body was perfectly cold and rigor mortis had already set in. From her right breast a little blood was oozing out of a bullet hole and around her mouth were plain stains of carbolic acid which she had taken. On the floor lay the revolver with which the dead had been committed. It had cartridges in all five chambers, only one of them being discharged. Near the revolver was lying a small bottle which had contained carbolic acid. It was almost empty.

The deputy sheriff immediately proceeded to give the dead woman's husband a thorough examination, a mounted patrolman who speaks Japanese fluently acting as interpreter. Later on, Chester Doyle arrived and in his turn examined the man.

From the testimony of this man, whose name is Ito Kichiro, it appears that he and the deceased were married in Japan. She was twenty-two years old at the time of her death. Kichiro had left the house yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and had returned about two hours later. He found the door locked but thinking that the woman had gone to visit friends, he did not attempt to enter but again left the premises, returning at about 6 p. m.

On his return, the door was still locked, there being a padlock as well as the door lock. Kichiro unscrewed the hasp of the padlock and opened the door lock with a key which he had. On entering the room, he found Ito Kiko lying face downwards on a blanket in the middle of the floor. The revolver and the carbolic acid bottle were lying close to her. The woman's legs were already quite cold but as her body was still warm, the doctor was sent for.

The woman must have been very determined as she had tried to end her life both by a bullet and by acid. Of the acid she took so much, however, that a reaction was produced and she vomited it all out. Hence the acid stains on her face around the mouth.

Kichiro stated that he and the woman had never had any trouble. Upon close questioning it developed, however, that he had made her occupy one of the dens in the stockade and that after the closing of that place he still compelled her to ply the shameful trade.

The woman was ill as a result and had been under medical treatment ever since May 2. This illness in connection with the fact that in spite of it she was still forced to lead a life of shame, probably furnished the reasons which made the unfortunate woman take her own life.

Coroner's jury was empaneled last night and viewed the remains on the spot. The inquest was set for the noon hour today.
